

Proof of origin for conflict minerals according to Dodd-Frank Act (US H.R. 4173, §1502)

Dear Sir/Madam,

The Dodd Frank Act was signed into law in the US on July 21, 2010. In addition to the regulation of financial markets, this law stipulates that companies forego raw materials from areas of conflict (§1502).

BIBUS, as a Swiss company with subsidiaries in Europe and Asia, is not directly affected by this law. Nevertheless, we pay careful attention to international developments with regard to ethics, social and environment standards.

We asked our suppliers if their products contain conflict minerals such as tantalum, tin, gold or wolfram and, if so, whether these originate from the Democratic Republic of the Congo or its neighbouring countries.

Based on the statements of our suppliers so far, and to the best of our knowledge, we believe that the products we sell are free of above mentioned conflict materials or that they originate from other sources.

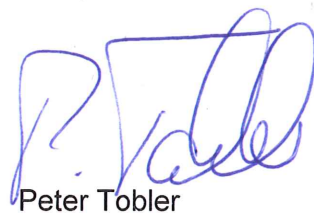

It goes without saying that BIBUS will continue to comply with any supply chain reporting requirements concerning conflict minerals.

Please do not hesitate to ask your contact person or write us directly at info@bibus-technology.com if you have further questions.

Yours sincerely,
BIBUS HOLDING AG
